

A Message from the President

Welcome to Unity College. This catalog will provide you with information to explore Unity. We want you to be excited and to have your interest piqued, as we show you that environmental studies is a field of opportunity and engagement. Unity College is a warm and authentic community; a place where you can experience wonderful academic, professional, and social learning.

Whether you are interested in scientific research, adventure education, environmental writing, sustainability, wildlife care, or a unique combination of subjects, there is a home for you at Unity College. Use this catalog to imagine the possibilities of your future. We believe that environmental learning is the wave of the future and that there will be countless professional opportunities. Now, more than ever, the world needs committed environmental stewards.

I've spent thirty years working in the environmental field and it's been amazing. What I love the most about studying the environment is that I am always learning something new about life. I am always discovering some wonder of the natural world. And I am always learning more about myself in relationship to others. The best part of the environmental professions is that they are about service, a way of giving something back and contributing to a broader community.

Unity College offers environmental studies for the real world. We are hands-on, applied, and experiential. We love field trips and exploration. Yet we also like to reflect on our work and think rigorously about challenging issues. We ask whether the work we do is making a difference. If this spirit appeals to you, then you have come to the right place. See how an environmental education at Unity College can fulfill your dreams.

Mitchell Thomashow
President, Unity College